

“More of the brain is devoted to vision and visual processing than any other known function, including language. More neurons in the human brain are involved in vision than is the case of all the other sensory modalities combined.”

Dr. Leo M.
Chalupa

Vice President for Research at George Washington University